

Entrepreneurial Cuba: The Changing Policy Landscape

ARCHIBALD R.M. RITTER AND TED A. HENKEN

“A provocative, compelling, and essential read. The ethnographic work alone is worth the price of admission.”

—John W. Cotman, Howard University

“A multifaceted analysis of Cuban economic activity . . . Ritter and Henken paint a lively picture of daily life in entrepreneurial Cuba.”

—Julia Sweig, Council on Foreign Relations

During the presidency of Raúl Castro, Cuba has dramatically reformed its policies toward small private enterprises. Archibald Ritter and Ted Henken consider why—and to what effect.

After reviewing the evolution of policy since 1959, the authors contrast the approaches of Fidel and Raúl Castro and explore in depth the responses of Cuban entrepreneurs to the new environment. Their work, rich in ethnographic research and extensive interviews, provides a revealing analysis of Cuba’s fledgling private sector.

Archibald R.M. Ritter is distinguished research professor emeritus of economics and international affairs at Carleton University. Ted A. Henken is associate professor of sociology and Latin American studies at Baruch College, CUNY.
